EOGA Tip of the week

With David Gerhardi (EOGA Steenberg)

Tight lies

Are you struggling with contact on tight lies?

Most players chip with their hands forward, causing the sandwedge to dig in the ground at impact and resulting in fat chips:

Here is a correct position at address:

Below are two pictures describing a one-arm drill.

Try this one-arm drill with the elbow in your stomach.

The elbow is staying against stomach through the shot and the bounce of the club will be the ball in the air.

If you need personalised help, please contact your EOGA coach:

What matters most to you?

One more QUESTION

We asked a question.
Do you see golf as a social, recreational activity OR a competitive sport? That invites one more question about your hopes.

Answer now >

If you followed the link, you'll see that it's quite an interesting question. I've seen the summary of the priorities from six other clubs. It will be good to see how we line up.

Remember, you can remain as anonymous as you like. I would be interested to know who you are, but please don't enter your name if you don't feel comfortable doing so.

It's a fun question

If you skipped the link above, then please know that it's quite a thought-provoking question. It's a what's most important? A 1 – 2 – 3 question.

Think about your golf

Starting to

GO LOWER

We've asked you to look at 4 particular stats. In week one of the conversation we wanted you to track fairways hit and then in week two we talked about average par 3 score.

Now let's measure your ability to control distance with the wedge. Over 4 rounds, measure the average number of shots it takes you to hole out from the 90 to 40-metre range.

Every time you get within 90 to 40-metres of the green you're trying to control distance on some sort of wedge shot. Most of you will have this shot 7 or 8 times per round. The difference between averaging 4 shots and 3 shots is therefore 7 to 8 strokes on your scorecard.

"Depending on your handicap, set yourself a target. Start by getting under 4, then attempt to get below 3.5 and then set off trying to reach 3. Practice really pays off with this skill."
