Weeks fly when we're busy

It was a busy week in the store. Thank you for that! And the email was almost as busy. So I chose two for you.

"I've never been fit for clubs, but I've worked myself down to a 13 handicap. Am I really missing out if I don't get fit?" ~ L. L.

First, good job in doing all the work in getting yourself down to near single digits. If you've never been fit, think of all the compensating movements you might have in your swing to get the ball up in the air. More than likely, you've changed your swing and body to accommodate the clubs and not the other way around. They might be close to your swing, or they might be dramatically off, and you just made it work. If you're close to the store, come in and have your bag evaluated to make sure what you have is working for you. Moreover, we'll take a look at that swing, I know we can make that work better too. However, a fit set of clubs are going to improve your game.

"I'm doing a ton of research online on different shafts I can choose from before I come in to get fit in a couple weeks. How do I know what would work best for me?" ~ E.P.

When a company states their specs online, they're giving a general performance guide on what they designed it to do and how it performed in controlled testing. But you have to put it in a head and try it out to see what YOU hit best. Unless you're just a geeky research nut like me who does it because you like it, I'd stop and wait until you get fit and we'll narrow that down for you based on what you hit the best and give you a few options to consider based on performance and price point.

New Titleist Drivers?

Why on Earth would Titleist come out with more new drivers?

Good question. Not every driver fits everyone. We can make anything work within our walls. However, when a company realizes that people do have different requirements such as a moderate or fast clubhead speed, that can make the fitter's job easier in getting a golfer something that can maximize their games over what they can do at that moment.

Well here enters the Titleist TS1 and TS4. These will join the TS2 and TS3 line up in late June to give golfers from top to bottom choices to fit their swings across the board. When we get the demo heads in the store, I'll let you nice folks know.

Has your bag lost it's magic?

And you're ready for something new, give us a call at 817.595.4653 and schedule a fitting and we'll show you what you may be missing with the newest gear around.

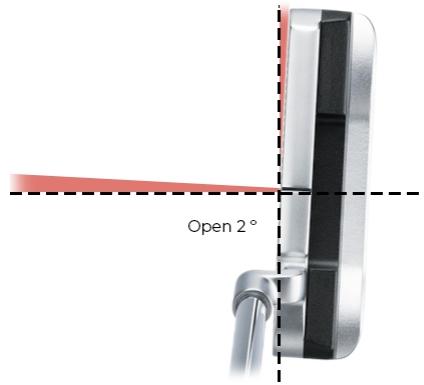

Could you save 5 shots per round?

A simple test to benchmark your putting setup

The jury is out on this one. The evidence shows that, if one is more important than the other, then it's marginal. We think this myth has come about as the industry tries to educate golfers that weight is very important.

And it is.

If the angle of your putter face is just 2° out at impact then, even from just 6 feet you're going to miss.

If you miss most putts in the 6 – 12 foot range then the chances are you have a face angle challenge. For most, that problem starts at the address position. Benchmark your skill level:

Improving your ability to square the putter face at impact will take up to 5 shots off your scorecard. There are some simple keys to that improvement.

So come and see us.
