

On the tee with Trevor

In January 2020 South Africa and the SADC countries, along with the rest of the world, will be going live with the World Handicap System.

The only significant changes to our current system will be that your Handicap Index will be calculated using the best 8 score differentials out of the last 20, with no reduction percentage, and the maximum score allowed on a hole when calculating your adjusted gross score for handicapping purposes will be nett double bogey (i.e. net 2 over par or zero Stableford points).

The current handicap calculation takes the best 10 of your last 20 scores x 0.96, so the effect of the change to the best 8 score differentials out of 20 is that Handicap Indexes (HI) will adjust downwards more quickly and go out more slowly. It is expected that this change will lower the average Course Handicap (CH) by about 0.5 of a stroke.

The change to nett double bogey (zero Stableford points) as the maximum score allowed on a hole, will have the effect of increasing the average Handicap Index by the same amount of about 0.5 of a stroke. So the net impact, over time, will be very minor.

When the WHS is introduced there will also be other changes, including a Playing Condition Calculation (PCC), a revised exceptional score calculation and a cap on increases in handicaps during a year. These changes will be addressed in the Club training sessions due to the technical nature of these calculations.

We will, of course, together with the R&A and the USGA, be communicating all these changes in more detail to you through structured club and golfer education and training sessions, to ensure that the World Handicap System rules are well understood by everyone before going live.

GolfRSA is of the view that it would be better to introduce, after Club training, the change to the maximum score per hole of nett double bogey, (zero Stableford points) and the best 8 of 20 scores by Q4, 2019.

This would mean there will be little or no change to handicaps when the WHS is introduced on 1 January 2020 and it will also mean the Playing Conditions Calculation will be more accurate when introduced.

Everyone wants forgiveness

The very best ball strikers too

The lower your handicap, the less space you have for error. So wouldn't it be nice to have a little forgiveness built into your game? But, first we know you don't want to compromise some key features:

Smaller profile

You want control over ball flight, so the profile of the club is smaller. The CoG is higher and closer to the face.

Forged

It's likely you want to "feel" the ball off the face and enjoy a great response through your hands. Incidentally, these clubs also provide a really nice sound on contact.

No offset

You have no trouble squaring the face so the shaft and clubface line up.

The great news is that the hitting zone has been extended on many better 2018 and 2019 Players Iron models to accommodate slight miss-hits towards the heel or toe. Ball speed is protected, and the distance the ball will travel is unchanged. That's a critical part of the accuracy a low handicap golfer must have.

Small change; Big improvement

Play the perfect partnership

Exploit the advantages technology is giving you, especially if you have little room for error in your round. But, don't neglect the biggest advantage: Get fitted for a setup that makes it easier to hit the perfect golf shot.

Knock it down. Knock it close.

If we asked you to stand 20 metres from this bucket and use an under-arm throw to get a golf ball in the bucket, would you use a lower trajectory (a) or a higher trajectory (b)?

Almost everyone correctly tackles this challenge by using a lower trajectory.

So why do most amateur golfers try and hit wedge shots as high as possible?

Knock it close with your wedge

Watch the golf on TV and you'll see Professionals hitting wedge shots mostly with a lower trajectory. They create a ton of spin. It makes it much easier for them to control distance. It makes it easier to be accurate. Time to learn a new skill?
