Revealing the lie

Manufacturers try and solve problems

Most golfers lose the ball to the right. So, some manufacturers make, especially their game improvement irons, with more and more upright lies. They're trying to find a solution to what MIGHT be a problem you have.

Research shows that for some golfers who lose the ball right, a more upright lie does change average ball flight.

It does, however, show that for some, it has entirely different results.

Each of you has different aspects to your swing, from your spine tilt to your knee flex; from your grip position on the club to the distance you stand from the ball; from your swing path to your angle of attack. All of these differences affect the lie angle of the club at impact, meaning everyone has different lie angle needs.

But the only way to tell is an assessment

That's why we want you to start your journey to a better golf experience with a proper assessment. Is your lie angle correct? Are your clubs making it harder to hit good shots? Why not find out?

A better life for them

You didn't grow up like this

We used to hear about "computer game addiction" as a crisis with a few oddballs in far-away lands. There is now a "Fortnite Craze" – a computer game that has children locked in their bedroom. Addicted. And it's here now. Not in far-away places.

Our whole society needs to react to these challenges. We need to find ways to create more fun and enjoyment in the real world. Golf is the greatest game ever invented. No requirement to be a jock. Boys and Girls. Very social. Outdoors. Healthy.

Let us add balance

Have your child enroll into one of our group sessions to learn to play golf, and we'll have them outdoors, interacting, learning new skills, and having a whole lot of fun they can take out onto the golf course. They won't stop playing computer games, but for a couple of hours each time we'll have them off the phone, out from in front of the screen, engaging in a fun activity.
