Student of the week

Chris Nel showed us how it's done

Chris Nel battled with his iron play and couldn't find consistency in his strikes. This was due to his over-swing, which resulted in him finding himself in a very high position at the top of his back-swing.

Fixing his back-swing was easy. He only had to tuck in his right elbow closer to his body. This small change made a massive difference in his positioning at the top, allowing him to have a more consistent swing for consistent ball-striking.

We are so proud of you Chris

Are you struggling with consistency in your ball striking?

Find your truth

Know where you're going

Launching your golf ball onto a soaring and accurate trajectory is one of the most satisfying feelings in golf. Most golfers are playing with a lie angle that makes this more difficult than it should be.

1 degree makes a big difference

When your lie angle is out by just 1 degree, you can stray up to 10 feet wide of your target. That's the difference between a birdie opportunity and a pressure putt to save par.

A longer tee shot means a shorter iron into the green, and we can all hit shorter irons more easily.

HOW'S YOUR ATTACK?

Most amateurs hit down on the ball with driver, creating what we call a negative 'angle of attack'. This adds extra spin and reduces distance. To hit it further, what you want is a flatter or positive angle of attack, so you're 'hitting up' on the ball.
