Easy Steps to Level Up Your Coaching in 2021

We may not be there just yet, but as your golf season starts to slow down, NOW is a great time to start using some tools at your fingertips like PGA.Coach & ADM Certification to increase your value and business!

Get ADM certified

- First things first: become ADM certified through PGA.Coach if you're not already! This training is free for PGA and LPGA Professionals, and it can be completed in a few hours across as many days as you need.

Incorporate ADM Into Your Practices

- PGA and LPGA Professionals who have ADM certified have access to an entire library of practice ideas and lesson plans through the PGA Coach App, available for Apple or Android devices. Plus, you can access practice plans already built by fellow professionals through the Featured Plans section.

PGA And Sagacity Partner To Provide Golf Facilities With Critical Benchmarking Data

The PGA of America and Sagacity Golf have partnered to provide a free Operations Benchmark Report to golf facilities nationwide. The interactive online report gives operators critical market-level benchmarks, empowering them to make data-driven business decisions that help increase revenue and make work processes easier.

The lack of an independent centralized data source to benchmark performance and share market knowledge has been a clear gap in the industry for many years. This free service is the first step in creating the long-term go-to resource for PGA Members and the entire golf industry.
